Keeping Montana Moral

Values. A foreign word to American ears, and even if somewhat understood, it seems distorted and perverted. The term “values” is often associated with “religion” or “conservative”, but I would like to take a closer look at the reality and help everyone to put aside their stereotypes of those with whom they disagree.

I represent Montanans whose goal is to maintain the foundation which our forefathers laid. The fact that our strong democratic country has lasted so long is no accident. Yes, it is due to the strong moral principles of our founders. George Washington himself stated, “It is impossible to rightly govern a nation without God and the Bible.”

To more liberal folks, this quote seems like nonsense, but I believe that old George had a point. Using authoritative books like the Bible to rule at least gives people a certainty as to their rights and duties. Do you honestly think America, or Montana for that matter, would be worse off if everyone followed the ten commandments?

I am not out to convert those who disagree with me, and I know there are many who will strongly oppose me. My aim is simply to return America to the state in which it started out, except without the threat of British rule. Church and state may remain separated, but enforcing laws which maintain common morality issues, such as abortion, stem-cell research, and homosexuality, is my main goal.

I will support all legislation which is in accordance with the Bible, and oppose all bills which seem unwholesome or opposed to the goals in which our founding fathers started.
